

ABSTRACT

A remedy ointment for piles includes the following steps; forming a base-mixture which include collecting a spawn of a swellfish and a starfish and powdering the same; forming a mixture which is obtained by mixing the powder of a starfish and a swellfish spawn obtained by the above step with a mixture of banana, salt, and water; mixing an alcohol in the vessel contained the mixture formed by the above step; mixing at a heating state which includes heating the vessel filled with the alcohol-mixture obtained by the above step, firing the alcohol in the vessel by indirect transmission of heat and remixing at the fired state; and cooling the mixture to normal temperature by natural cooling. The above remedy ointment for piles has an advantage that it can be easily prepared and is simultaneously convenient to use and easy to store because of preparation in the form of an ointment and has a prominent effect in the treatment of piles.